“ I remember the first time I met Dwight. He definitely left an impression. He seemed so full of life and gusto. All smiles. I gave him a gift, an Indian relic, I will never forget that look! He warmed my heart with his true appreciation. Something so small meant so much to him. He was a genuine person. It didn't matter how much time passed between conversations, he always laughed and talked to me as if it was just yesterday that we had spoken. And I know he loved my cousin Ann dearly. Their love was strong, and I can only hope I find that in my lifetime. Dwight Bryan was a great man in my eyes. Heaven has him now but his memory will never fade. God speed Dwight. You will be missed.
